Hennessy's Stare Quells Martin.

As Mr. Hennessy left the offices of the State Highway Department to-day he met John Martin, who denied last week that during his investigations with Hennessy he discovered any graft or waste on State highways. Martin was embarrassed by the stare of Mr. Hennessy and when the latter demanded that he produce his field notes before the day was over, Martin said he would. Mr. Hennessy said that from these field notes he would prove untrue the statement of Martin that no graft or waste existed.

Martin failed to meet Mr. Hennessy at the appointed time to-night and when the latter called at the Highway Department for him, he was told he was not there.

"He has run away," said Mr. Hennessy when asked if Martin had produced his field notes.
